THE COURT: I am having trouble with my camera here. 1 2 I am trying to get it set up. Good afternoon, everybody. I apologize for starting a 3 4 little late, my camera is not working right so you get to see 5 all of the mess in my office. 6 Good afternoon, everybody. This is case 20-2924, In 7 Re: Ranitidine (Zantac) Product Liability Litigation. Let me begin with appearances. I'll start with counsel for the 8 9 Plaintiffs. MS. FINKEN: Tracy Finken on behalf of Plaintiffs, 10 11 good afternoon, your Honor. THE COURT: Good afternoon. 12 1.3 On behalf of the Defense. 14 MS. HILL: Good afternoon, your Honor, Jennifer Hill 1.5 on behalf of GlaxoSmithKline, and I will be arguing on behalf of the brand Defendants today. 16 17 THE COURT: Good afternoon, Ms. Hill. I think this is the first time you have argued in this case, so welcome. Are 18 19 you one of our LDC people? 20 MS. HILL: I am not. 21 THE COURT: Okay. We are here today because the brand 22 Defendants filed at Docket Entry 5718 an expedited motion to compel disclosures relating to Dr. -- I will pronounce her name wrong. Is it Hidajat?

MS. FINKEN: Hidajat.

THE COURT: Okay. I have reviewed the motion and the attachments to the motion. I saw the Plaintiffs' response and I reviewed their response, including the entirety of Dr. Hidajat's deposition transcript, and I received the Defendants' reply this morning, which I have also had a chance to review, along with its attachments.

Have the Plaintiffs filed anything else that I haven't mentioned?

MS. FINKEN: No, your Honor.

THE COURT: Did Defense?

MS. HILL: No, your Honor.

THE COURT: Ms. Hill, it is your motion, I will allow you to be heard first and give you the last word when we are all done.

MS. HILL: Thank you. Thank you for hearing the motion today, we appreciate the Court's time. It is an important issue.

The brand Defendants' motion boils down to whether the Plaintiffs should be permitted to put special limitations on the discovery of the opinions of Dr. Hidajat. We are asking the Court to order complete disclosures from Dr. Hidajat, just as would be provided as a matter of course for any other testifying expert.

Dr. Hidajat is, of course, the author of a 2019 study on rubber factory workers who were exposed to NDMA in the workplace, and we have since learned that Plaintiffs retained Dr. Hidajat first as a consulting expert back in November 2020.

Now, as the Court I'm sure is aware, this study has come up several times in the litigation. It has come up at Science Day in December, it has come in Plaintiffs' primary expert reports that were served in January, and also in the Defendants' expert reports that were served in March.

The Plaintiffs then chose to disclose Dr. Hidajat as a testifying expert on March 28th. At that time she was characterized as a rebuttal expert who would be talking about her rubber worker study. The brand Defendants moved to strike her report as untimely and improper, and I understand that the Court has deferred ruling on that motion, but the Court did instruct the Defendants to take her deposition, which we did on June 8th.

At that deposition, however, we were repeatedly met with objections and instructions not to answer questions that we feel were basic questions about the information and the materials that Dr. Hidajat reviewed.

Your Honor, the Plaintiffs have taken the position that Dr. Hidajat can limit her disclosures and her testimony because she was initially retained as a consulting expert rather than a testifying expert, but in the very same litigation.

The Plaintiffs do acknowledge that Dr. Hidajat was consulting on matters concerning Ranitidine. Those are their words from their opposition.

1.5

Your Honor, the Defendants' position is that these limitations are inappropriate. The lines that the Plaintiffs are trying to draw around Dr. Hidajat's work before March of 2022 and her work since March of 2022, are just unrealistic, and in fact contrary to how Dr. Hidajat used her own opinions.

Now, there are three points that I do want to emphasize today. First is the extent of Dr. Hidajat's consulting role. It was significant. Dr. Hidajat worked on this litigation for more than a year before she was identified as a testifying expert. We were provided with invoices for 19 days of work that she did in March 2022.

At her deposition, she estimated that she had billed the Plaintiffs more than $150,000 for her work before that. That amount represents more than 300 hours of work at her standard billing rate. We know that she worked on matters concerning Ranitidine, but we really have no other discovery on what that work entails.

Now, just for context, your Honor, the total amount that Dr. Hidajat has invoiced in this litigation is actually comparable to what Plaintiffs other experts have invoiced, experts like Dr. McTiernan, Dr. Moorman and Dr. Salmon, who all generated reports that were hundreds of pages long.

The Defendants are entitled to know what Dr. Hidajat considered and what she reviewed and did for more than 300 hours of work, and what she was compensated for. That is basic discovery that we are entitled to under the Federal rules.

The second point, Judge, is that full disclosure and full discovery of a testifying expert is appropriate here because there is no clear distinction between Dr. Hidajat's two roles. Your Honor, when Plaintiffs chose to name Dr. Hidajat as a testifying expert, she became an expert who is "retained or specially employed" to provide expert testimony in this case.

Those are the rules from — those are the words from Rule 26(a)(2)(B), and that governs the disclosures that are required from testifying experts, which Dr. Hidajat has become by way of her designation. The Defendants are entitled to a full disclosure of the facts and data that she considered in forming her opinions.

Now, your Honor, a majority of Courts do view this as applying with equal force to experts who start off as consulting experts, but then later become testifying experts, and that point is addressed in the Tampa Bay Water case from the Middle District of Florida which is cited in our papers.

There are, however, Courts that have allowed an exception to the general rule of full disclosure, but those Courts have done so only in limited circumstances, that is, where there is a clear distinction in the two roles, in the consulting role and the testifying role.

Your Honor, if you look at the cases that are cited and discussed in our motion papers, you will see how this distinction is applied. So, in the Tampa Bay Water case, for example, the Court allowed the Plaintiffs to assert work product protection over information that was considered and generated by the consulting company when that information was not even related to the opinions the consultants were later retained to offer through testimony.

Here there is no such distinction, there is no distinction between Dr. Hidajat's two roles, and certainly there is not a clear distinction, which is what the law would require.

Your Honor, Dr. Hidajat herself says that her opinions are based on the totality of the evidence. She says that in her report, that is on page 28 of her report, and she reiterated that point at her deposition. She is invoking the totality of the evidence. She is not invoking a distinct subset of the evidence, she is not drawing any distinctions or even a clear distinction in the information that she is relying on.

Dr. Hidajat also said in no uncertain terms that she views her study as being relevant to the issues in this case, and those issues are whether NDMA exposure in Ranitidine can cause cancer. Of course, Dr. Hidajat's rubber worker study doesn't mention Ranitidine. She has no professional experience with Ranitidine, so she is necessarily relying on information she must have considered in her consulting role to form an opinion on the relevance of her rubber worker study to this litigation.

Now, there are a number of questions we would like to ask Dr. Hidajat about how she reached that conclusion, but we weren't permitted to do so in her deposition.

Now, Plaintiffs' counsel have offered to stipulate that Dr. Hidajat will not provide the opinion that NDMA can cause cancer. Your Honor, that really does nothing to alleviate the concern; if anything, it confuses the issue and adds more ambiguity to Dr. Hidajat's opinions.

Even if Dr. Hidajat does not explicitly say an opinion that NDMA can cause cancer, Plaintiffs' counsel has said that this is the obvious conclusion to be drawn from her study. In other words, even if you eliminate those specific words, there is no practical way to separate out the general causation conclusion from her study. They are inextricably connected.

Your Honor, the third point I want to make is that the rules favor broad disclosure from dual role experts. So, even if there were some ambiguity and whether it is appropriate to draw a line between Dr. Hidajat's consulting role and her testifying role, and ambiguity has to be resolved in favor of full disclosure, and that point is also made in the Tampa Bay

Water case, along with other cases that are cited in our papers.

Your Honor, when an expert reviews materials before or in connection with formulating his or her opinions, those materials should be disclosed. That is the rule that other testifying experts have followed in this litigation, and that is exactly what we are asking of Dr. Hidajat.

Your Honor, at the end of the day, this issue is fairly straightforward. The litigation is about whether NDMA in Ranitidine can cause the types of cancers being alleged by the Plaintiffs. The Defendants' expert reports address that point. Dr. Hidajat is being offered as a testifying expert to rebut those opinions.

Now, while she may intend to address a smaller slice of that issue, it is the same issue, it is not a different issue and it is not a distinct issue. There is no basis to draw artificial lines around Dr. Hidajat's two roles here.

Your Honor, our motion is seeking complete disclosure of the information that all testifying experts should provide under Rule 26 as a matter of course, without any artificial limitations based on Dr. Hidajat's earlier role, and we are also asking for an additional three hours to complete her deposition as to information that was initially withheld.

Your Honor, I am happy to answer any questions. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you very much, Ms. Hill.

I don't have any questions at this point. I will give you the last word after we hear from Ms. Finken. I know there is one question I am going to put to you, so I will give you time to think about it before you speak again.

That is, if I ultimately agree with Ms. Finken, and I clearly haven't made up my mind yet, but if I ultimately agree with Ms. Finken, does that moot out your request to compel further discovery in response to your request for production?

You don't need to answer that now if you don't want to. You can respond to that after I hear from Ms. Finken.

Ms. Finken, let me hear from you.

MS. FINKEN: Good afternoon, Judge Reinhart. I disagree with Ms. Hill on one point. There is no ambiguity here. Dr. Hidajat, her opinion is solely, one hundred percent related to the information and materials and her own knowledge about her own studies, and that is it. It does not expand beyond the four corners of her own studies that she conducted in relation to NDMA exposure in rubber workers. She did not need to review any Ranitidine studies or any other NDMA studies to offer opinions about her own studies.

She is here in a limited role as a rebuttal witness to address assumptions that were made by the Defense experts related to her own rubber worker study, and for that, the only material she needed to review, and she testified she reviewed, was related to her own studies, her own materials and data related to those studies.

Repeatedly during the course of her deposition we advised counsel that Dr. Hidajat would not be offering any testimony at trial relating to general causation on whether or not NDMA causes cancers or Ranitidine causes certain cancers. She was there as a rebuttal witness to testify about the assumptions that were made of her own study. That was noted repeatedly during the course of the deposition and we provided your Honor with the entirety of the transcript instead of excerpts so that you could see it for yourself in context.

Repeatedly during the course of the deposition Defense counsel continued to ask Dr. Hidajat about material and information and work that she did as a consulting expert for us prior to her rebuttal report, and we allowed Dr. Hidajat to answer any questions — to the extent that she relied or considered material in relation to her rebuttal report, we would permit her to answer those questions, however, to the extent that she did not, and the material and work was only done in relation to the consulting work that she did for us on other matters related to this litigation, we instructed her not to answer.

There is a very clear delineation between Dr.

Hidajat's role as a rebuttal expert and what she did as a consulting expert in this case, and it ends at the boundaries of her own studies with the rubber workers. We repeatedly stated that, as did Dr. Hidajat, and you can tell that from the four corners of her report.

While there is a paragraph at the end of her report that indicates that NDMA does cause cancer, and that is based on the totality of the evidence, we have notified counsel and we stated that on the record in the deposition that Dr. Hidajat would not be providing testimony on that particular paragraph in her report at the trial, that we were taking that down.

THE COURT: I'm sorry to interrupt you. Would you agree -- is your proposal that you would agree to strike, at a minimum, the last sentence of the report which says, "taken together, based on the totality of the evidence, it is my professional opinion, within a reasonable degree of scientific certainty, that NDMA can cause cancer," end of quote?

MS. FINKEN: Yes, your Honor, and that is something that we stipulated to on the record. Our intent is not to offer Dr. Hidajat as a general causation expert. She is here to testify about her study, and to the extent that that sentence causes confusion, we are willing to strike that sentence from her report.

Her sole role as a testifying expert in this case is to rebut assumptions that were made about her own study and her own study data, and the methodology that was used in that study. There was no need for her to review any other materials or consider any other information beyond what she and her colleagues had done in the context of that collection of -- constellation of studies in rubber workers for purposes of her rebuttal report.

To answer your question, yes, your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. I didn't mean to interrupt

MS. FINKEN: That is fine.

you.

 $\it THE\ COURT:$ Go on if you have any further argument you want to present.

MS. FINKEN: Your Honor, I think I can rest for now.

I do want to say that the law is pretty straightforward, the Federal rules and the case on this point. When there is a clear delineation between the role as a consultant and what they are going to testify to at trial, that the consulting capacity and those materials are considered work product and are privileged, and that is our position in this case.

I am happy to answer any other questions, your Honor, if you have them.

THE COURT: This is more of a factual question, which I usually try not to ask.

I don't have copies of the reports that critique Dr. Hidajat's report, but were those in the Defense's expert disclosures, their experts essentially say her report is unreliable and shouldn't be relied upon because it deals with environmental, it deals with rubber, it doesn't deal with Ranitidine, and also there are flaws in the actual methodology, they didn't consider this, they didn't consider that, they didn't consider this other thing.

MS. FINKEN: Correct, your Honor. In the Defense expert reports, and the specific experts that she is rebutting, it is listed in her rebuttal expert report, but they critiqued her study as being unreliable as evidence of causation in this case, and they made assumptions about how the data was collected and how the study was conducted related specifically to the Hidajat studies that were performed.

That is why Dr. Hidajat was offered as a rebuttal expert to rebut those assumptions that were made about her studies that were conducted, and she did not need to rely or consider any other information to reach those conclusions and opinions, nor did she.

Her opinions were based upon the studies that were conducted by her and her colleagues, many of which predated any of the Ranitidine epidemiological studies that Defense counsel attempted to question Dr. Hidajat about at her deposition, and it was well beyond the scope of her rebuttal expert testimony and report.

THE COURT: Thank you. Let me go back a little further in the process.

Do I assume, then, that some of the Plaintiffs' experts who have been disclosed who will be testifying about general causation, that some of your experts, for their own reasons, do rely on Dr. Hidajat's report, consider it relevant and incorporate it into their methodology for concluding whatever they conclude about general causation, and that is why the Defense was attacking Dr. Hidajat, because she is not going to testify to general causation, but one of your other experts will testify to it, and therefore they want to say that person is flawed by relying on Dr. Hidajat's report because Dr. Hidajat's report employed a flawed methodology?

Am I understanding the dialogue here?

MS. FINKEN: That is correct, your Honor. Dr. Hidajat's studies were one piece of evidence that the Plaintiffs' epidemiologic experts relied upon in reaching conclusions on general causation, along with a whole body of other evidence and the medical and scientific literature about NDMA's ability to cause cancer, and the NDMA in Ranitidine's ability to cause cancer. Dr. Hidajat's publications were one piece of evidence in them reaching their conclusions.

The Defense experts critiqued our experts for relying on the Hidajat study at all and they had assumptions about the methodology and how the Hidajat study was conducted in relation to the study design itself, and that is what Dr. Hidajat's rebuttal expert report was designed to address, and that is what it does address.

For that she needed no other information beyond the studies that were published by her and her colleagues on that occupational exposure to NDMA and the conclusions that they reached and the methodology that they utilized.

THE COURT: Thank you very much. Anything else you wanted to present at this time?

MS. FINKEN: No, your Honor, thank you.

THE COURT: Let me turn back to Ms. Hill and allow her to respond.

MS. HILL: Yes, your Honor, thank you.

THE COURT: Let me start with where I kind of left off with Ms. Finken. It seemed to me that Dr. Hidajat's testimony that she thought her study was relevant actually was nonresponsive to the question that Mr. Sheehan had put to her, but let's assume that is what she believes.

Why is that relevant to this litigation? I can understand why a different expert says, I am going to rely on Dr. Hidajat's report because I think it is a good report, it is relevant to me and relevant to my conclusion. If Dr. Hidajat is not ultimately tendering an opinion that Ranitidine causes cancer, why does it matter whether she thinks other people should rely on her report or not?

MS. HILL: Your Honor, that is a good question. I think the answer is that, just as Plaintiff's counsel expressed in one of their prior briefings, the obvious conclusion that they are seeking to draw from Dr. Hidajat's study and therefore her report is that NDMA can cause cancer.

Whether we strike that particular sentence, and whether we ignore Dr. Hidajat's view of how her study fits into this litigation, there is no way to separate out the issues that Dr. Hidajat seeks to cover in her report and the issues in this litigation. They are connected.

There is certainly no distinction between the opinions that she is seeking to offer in the four corners of her report and the issues that are being addressed by other experts.

Your Honor, I think your questions on the timing of how Dr. Hidajat's report became relevant or came up in expert discovery is really telling.

The Plaintiff's epidemiology experts did cite to Dr. Hidajat's study, the defense experts responded to those opinions. That sequence demonstrates that the study, at least from Plaintiffs' view, is connected to the issues in the litigation. So, even if we want to eliminate one sentence from Dr. Hidajat's report, or ignore what she said in her deposition, the conclusion of the study, the conclusion that the Plaintiffs wish to draw is tied to the issues in this case and they are related to the subject matter of Dr. Hidajat's consulting role.

Your Honor, you also asked whether -- if you agreed with Plaintiffs' position, whether that would moot the request and the additional disclosures that the Defendants are seeking.

Certainly the dispute here does center around the Plaintiffs' position that Dr. Hidajat is entitled to limited disclosures based on her consulting role. Even if the Court were to accept the Plaintiffs' position that Dr. Hidajat's consulting role was distinguishable and unrelated to her testifying role, there is certainly discovery that would still be owed to us.

So, Dr. Hidajat was retained, she is the lead author on this rubber worker study, she has no professional experience with Ranitidine, and she was engaged as a consultant. We have no information about what she considered or what she did during that time, but we would presume that part of the consulting related to her rubber worker study, which ultimately is the subject matter of her report and the opinions that she does very explicitly intend to offer as a testifying expert.

So, at the very least, there is information that we would be entitled to as it relates to Dr. Hidajat's rubber worker study that hasn't been disclosed to us.

THE COURT: Did -- go ahead.

MS. HILL: Your Honor, at the end of the day, the lines that the Plaintiffs are seeking to draw are unworkable because they are artificial. There is no clear distinction. The case law really bears out the difference in -- the situations in which consulting experts can have limited disclosures, and those situations are unlike what we are presented with here today.

I understand the Plaintiffs' position is that Dr. Hidajat is intending to offer an opinion on a smaller or more narrow piece of this issue, but the issue is the same, it is not distinct, and for that reason we are entitled to full disclosure, just as would be expected for any other testifying expert.

THE COURT: So, in your view, what makes Dr. Hidajat different from any other author who is cited by any expert is that she is being offered as a rebuttal expert, so you should be allowed to probe her underlying study. If she had never been offered as a rebuttal expert, you wouldn't feel that you would be entitled to probe into her study?

entitled to this discovery, the disclosures that are allowed under Rule 26, is because Dr. Hidajat has been offered as a testifying expert, and therefore we are entitled to disclosures that are required from any other testifying expert, and Dr. Hidajat should be treated no differently because her two roles are connected and entirely related.

THE COURT: Thank you. Anything further?

MS. HILL: That is all for me. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. Very well briefed and very well argued on both sides. It is an interesting question.

Here is where I come out:

I agree with Ms. Hill in the sense that Dr. Hidajat shouldn't be treated different from anybody else, any other expert, and the fact that she has some sort of a hybrid role here, the rules account for it, and while there are lines that the Defense takes the position are artificial, there are lines that the rules require be drawn.

So, first of all, I start with the accepted premise that Dr. Hidajat is an expert witness only and not a fact witness as a rebuttal expert.

Under the rules, experts are treated differently, and the reason they are treated differently is because they get to offer opinions. That is what Rule of Evidence 702 says, and the structure of the Rules of Civil Procedure then all derive from the expert's opinion, not the expert, but the expert's opinion is the measuring stick.

Rule 26(a)(2)(B), romanette i, says the expert has to issue a report, a testifying expert must tender a report, and the report must contain, quote, "a complete statement of all opinions the witness will express and the basis and reasons for them," close quote.

And then the other subparts of subparagraph capital B all relate to the opinion, the facts and data considered in forming the opinion, experts that will be used to summarize or support the opinion, and then the expert's qualifications and other things. So the opinion is what matters here.

So, what is Dr. Hidajat's opinion in this case? It is that her study had integrity, that she did a good study, that is it. It was — other doctors, other experts have decided they are going to rely on her report. Defense criticizes them for relying on what Defense proposes is a flawed report, and Dr. Hidajat comes forward and says there were no flaws in my report, everything they critiqued my report for we took into account.

Ultimately, Judge Rosenberg, the finder of fact, will decide whether Dr. Hidajat's report is worthy of belief or not worthy of belief, but she is not opining that anything causes cancer. Her report concludes that NDMA can cause cancer, and other experts are relying on that report. Presumably the Defendants have and will probe those experts as to why they are relying on what the Defense believes to be a flawed report. That is the proper inquiry.

Whether Dr. Hidajat thinks her report is relevant to this lawsuit is not relevant to this lawsuit. Her state of mind is not relevant.

Now, I presume that the Defendants have asked all the other experts about their state of mind, because it seems clear to me that their decision to rely on Dr. Hidajat's report as relevant would certainly be fair game and I am sure will be aggressively litigated.

Dr. Hidajat's opinion that her report is relevant I just find -- first of all, it was gratuitously offered during the testimony, it's not part of her report, so I don't think that swings open a door that allows extensive other discovery in this case.

At the end of the day, where I land is, I agree with the Plaintiffs. I think they have properly analyzed the question. Dr. Hidajat was called for the limited purpose and is being offered for the limited purpose of simply responding to the critiques of her methodology. Having reviewed her deposition, I find that she was not instructed to avoid answering questions that were germane to those topics, and to the extent she was not instructed not to answer questions, those instructions were proper.

For all of those reasons, I am going to deny the Defense's request to compel further testimony or disclosures from Dr. Hidajat outside the four corners of the expert report. I am going to strike the last sentence of her report, and without that being in the report, she cannot testify to that. That formalizes within the court docket the stipulation from the Plaintiffs that she will not be allowed to testify.

I also presume, but I will make this clear on the record as well, I don't believe it would be proper for her to testify to any opinion as to whether her report is relevant or not. As I said earlier, her state of mind is not relevant, and I will leave that ultimately to Judge Rosenberg, but it would seem to me that should not be offered as well.

Without waiving any objection you may have to that ruling, Ms. Hill, what are the additional discovery items in the request for production that you want me to compel? I have it here at Docket Entry 5718-3.

MS. HILL: Your Honor, to the extent Dr. Hidajat reviewed or considered materials relating to her report, it is our position that we would be entitled to discovery of those materials even within the parameters of the Court's ruling.

To the extent that Dr. Hidajat was reviewing or considering information or materials that related to a rubber worker study, or any of the issues that are discussed in her rebuttal report, those are clearly discoverable and we should be provided with that information.

THE COURT: Ms. Finken.

MS. FINKEN: Your Honor, any information that Dr. Hidajat relied upon or considered in her report has been provided to the Defendants already, and she was questioned about them. There has been nothing that has been held back that she relied or considered in formulating her opinions for her rebuttal report.

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. HILL: Your Honor, just to clarify, we did receive invoices that were all dated from March of 2022, and presumably Dr. Hidajat was doing work that related to her rubber worker study or to the issues that ultimately ended up in her rebuttal report. She did that work between November of 2020 and March of 2022, where our first invoices began.

It is our position that we would also be entitled to invoices and other information about the compensation that she received related to that aspect of her rebuttal report.

THE COURT: When did the Defense serve its expert reports?

 $\it MS.~\it HILL:$ The Defense reports were served on March 7th.

THE COURT: If Dr. Hidajat is being called as a rebuttal witness, how is anything she did before March 7th discoverable? Until that moment she was a non-testifying expert, unless she went back after the fact and relied on it, and that wouldn't be reflected in her work that predated March 7th.

MS. HILL: Dr. Hidajat, her entire role and position in this litigation is as the lead author of the rubber worker study. That study has come up in this litigation multiple times, including at Science Day in December 2021, and in the Plaintiffs' opening expert reports.

To the extent that she was doing consulting work that specifically related to the same topics that are covered in the four corners of her report, it is our position that we would be entitled to not only the information she considered, but also the invoicing and compensation she received as part of it.

The distinction, your Honor, is not necessarily the time, it is the subject matter and it's the substance of what she was doing, regardless of when she did it.

THE COURT: I understand your argument. I am going to overrule that request. I think her role in this as an expert is limited to, I read the Defense's reports, they said critical things about my study, they are wrong, here is why they are wrong. She could not have had that thought process prior to receiving the Defense's reports. Well, clearly we can go back to when she did the study in 20, whatever it was, 18, 19, and she was thinking about making sure the study was a good study and that she followed accepted scientific and statistical methods and things like that.

That is not what she is testifying to here. She is testifying to the methodology, not to the underlying data. She is testifying to the methodology and what she has testified to is, once I got the Defense's report I didn't have to do a whole lot. I remember this very well, I spoke to some of my colleagues, and this is what I did.

I will overrule that request.

What other request does the Defense have?

MS. HILL: Nothing further, your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: Not waiving any objections the Defense may 1 have to my rulings here today, Ms. Hill, is there anything else 2 that you wanted me to rule on or that I haven't addressed? 3 4 MS. HILL: Nothing else today. 5 THE COURT: Ms. Finken, not waiving any objections you 6 may have, do you seek any further clarification or have any 7 other topics that I should address today? 8 MS. FINKEN: No, your Honor. Thank you for your time, 9 and good seeing you again. 10 THE COURT: Good seeing all of you again. Like I said, very well argued, very well briefed. It was a 11 12 fascinating issue to analyze, so I thank the parties and I will 13 excuse the parties in this matter. 14 MS. FINKEN: Thank you. 15 MS. HILL: Thank you. 16 (Thereupon, the hearing was concluded.) 17 18 I certify that the foregoing is a correct transcript 19 from the record of proceedings in the above matter. 20 21 Date: July 7, 2022 22 /s/ Pauline A.
